【乙】三、閱讀理解：共 10 題，每題 6 分

On the first day of class, the professor offers a choice. "If you show up for class every week, cause no trouble, do no work, I will give you a D. You cannot get anything higher than a D, but you won't fail either." Would you accept the offer?

Certain people would. A large percentage of long-term welfare recipients have done just that. The offer is made by the government, not a teacher, but the proposition is the same. If a person is willing to accept minimal rewards, he will be excused from competing in the free enterprise system. Why would one accept such a meager offer? Most of us are not willing to accept minimum benefit for the minimum effort. But what cause some people to accept?

The people who accept are the people who feel they cannot compete. They are poor; they've had few of the advantages (real or imagined) that "other" people have. All their relatives are poor; they have no role models that have "made it" legitimately. People who might have been great chose the welfare because they thought that was all they deserved. If they have been forced to compete, if there had been more encouragements and other choices, they might have made it, and with more than a D.

31. Who are compared to the students willing to accept the offer of an easy D?
(A)People living on social welfare. (B)People working for the government.
(C)People questioning college education. (D)People getting rich from illegal business.
32. According to the author, what type of persons may be willing to accept minimal rewards?
(A)The rich. (B)The hopeless.
(C)The lazy. (D)The virtuous.
33. Which is NOT a way suggested by the author to help those willing to receive a meager offer?
(A)To give them encouragements. (B)To give them more choices.
(C)To give them role models. (D)To give them better welfare.
34. Which of the following statements is TRUE?
(A)The author assumes that everyone likes to achieve a higher score than D.
(B)The author urges the government to provide more welfare to the poor and jobless.
(C)The author thinks that people who live on welfare really enjoy the minimum benefit.
(D)The author would like to get rid of all social welfare system.

35. What may be the best title for this essay?

(A) A long-term welfare policy.

(B) How to "Make It."

(C) The Choice.

(D) The Free Enterprise System.

Either on the phone or in person, ask the seller a few general questions so as to evaluate the car's condition and some possible problems as well. Be forewarned that car sellers might not be aware of any troubles. Even if they do, they may understate them. Here are some good questions to ask:

- Are you the first owner? If the owner has cared for the car, there will usually be receipts to prove it.
- What's the mileage? Don't emphasize this too much, but do take it into account. Ask if they drove mostly on highways or in the city. Highway miles are better, but this is still only one indicator. Accurate mileage can be assessed through maintenance records or by checking the stickers on the inside of the driver's door.
- Why are you selling the car? "Because I had a baby," is a good answer; "I just feel like it," can make you wonder if the car has needed continual repairs.
- What condition is it in? The "Get What You Paid For" theory certainly applies to used cars. Ask how often the car has been maintained (oil checked, timing adjusted, tires rotated) just to get a general idea. Ask to see the receipts for this work.
- Has it been in an accident? An accident can alter anything from the car's steering to the engine's performance; front-end damage can be especially problematic.
- Has the car been emissions-tested? Different states have different regulations, so find out what's needed in your state. Be careful - this can require complex repairs if the car isn't up to standards.

36. The main focus of these tips are

(A) ways to check out a used car

(B) ways to buy a new vehicle

(C) survival kits for the car dealer

(D) ways to fix the minor problems of your vehicle.

37. Which of the following statements is NOT true?

(A) A front-end damage of the car can be especially problematic.

(B) The "Get What You Paid For" theory only applies to new cars.

(C) Different states have different regulations toward emissions-test.

(D) Accurate mileage can be assessed through maintenance records.

38. According to the passage, what is the best answer to the question: "Why do you sell this car?"

(A) Because I had a better car in mind.

(B) Because I just feel like it.

(C) Because we have a new family member.

(D) Because I don't like the color anymore.

39. In terms of the car mileage,

(A) the highway mileage is better than the city mileage.

(B) accurate mileage should be emphasized as the most important criteria.

(C) Accurate mileage can be assessed by checking the stickers on the driver's license.

(D) Mileage is not important at all.

40. Why is the question "Has the car been emissions-tested?" important?

(A) Because if it is not tested this year, you will need to pay for the testing fee.

(B) Because you need to know how to perform the emissions test.

(C) Because you need to know the regulation about emissions test.

(D) Because you may save a major repair expense to meet the standard of the emission test.
